Lifestyle, lifestyle, lifestyle are the words that best sum up what makes the Riverland such a great place to live, work, play and invest. The Riverland is a diverse and unique region, there is no one particular thing that makes it special, it is the unique combination of many factors including our river, our people, our produce, our sense of pride and community spirit, and the closeness and cooperation, yet distinction between the major towns in the Riverland that all contribute to making the Riverland what it is.

There are no maps, facts, figures or statistics that can sum up the way Riverlanders live, work, play and invest transiently between Riverland towns on a daily basis. The way the community rallies together in times of both celebration and adversity, or the friendships that develop across the region through work, sport or social interaction.

Live, Work, Play, Invest Riverland, was initiated and developed by Regional Development Australia Murraylands and Riverland Inc. in response to business and industries challenge to enable people from outside of the region to understand the unique way in which the 35,000 people of the Riverland live, work, play and interact together as one community. Our combined population and the numerous facilities and activities we have to offer across our region, are similar to that of a rural city. This combined with the unique and relaxed lifestyle of a country town on the water's edge, provides something to offer for everyone, including those looking to raise a family, pursue a career, seeking retirement and relaxation or invest in business and property.

We trust this document gives you an insight into our lifestyle, and leaves you with a sense of what we as locals know about the region, and why we choose to live in this special place. We would love for you to join us and invite you to become a part of the Riverland, so you too can enjoy the lifestyle we take for granted.

Regional Overview

Australia's longest river, the mighty Murray River, is the heartbeat of South Australia's Riverland region.

With a Mediterranean climate of warm, dry summers and a relatively mild winter, a population of approximately 35,000 people live and work across the five major towns of Barmera, Berri, Loxton, Renmark and Waikerie, calling the Riverland their home.

Through our key industry sectors of viticulture, horticulture, citrus, stone fruit, almond production, dryland farming and tourism, the Riverland is a major economic contributor within the state and nationally.

Located just over 2 hours north east of Adelaide and 90 minutes west of Mildura, the region is home to a number of medical services, hospitals, schools and learning facilities, aged care facilities, service sectors, and shopping precincts.

Encompassing 9386km² the Riverland is serviced by three innovative and progressive local government councils; District Council of Loxton Waikerie, Berri Barmera Council and Renmark Paringa Council. Several state and federal government departments and services are located in Berri including Medicare, Centrelink, Service SA and the region's impressive Riverland General Hospital.

South Australia's Riverland offers exceptional opportunities and an enviable quality of life.

Living

Living in the Riverland is affordable and safe.

Warm dry summers and relatively mild winters make it possible to take full advantage of life, all year round, in one of the most beautiful, naturally diverse regions in Australia.

Property prices are substantially lower than the South Australian median and offer a charming and eclectic mix of building and construction styles.

Choose from wonderful old stone villas with large rooms, tall chimneys and high ceilings or ultra-modern, open-plan, energy efficient spaces.

Another alternative is to take advantage of the Riverland's buoyant housing construction industry, and very reasonably priced land and build your dream home.

Each major town has a vibrant retail area, from the charm of traditional main street precincts where locally operated small businesses offer niche products and a unique shopping experience, through to modern plaza style shopping centres, multi-national retailers, fast food outlets and 7-day supermarket shopping, the Riverland has something for everyone.

In addition, the Riverland Farmers' Market, together with the many roadside produce stalls scattered throughout the region, offer an impressive array of locally grown fresh fruit and vegetables.

Hotels, motels, clubs, restaurants, cafes and take-away outlets shape a vibrant and emerging Riverland food and wine experience.

Profits from the region's community owned hotels and clubs are used to benefit local charities, events, groups and associations.

Well Being

The Riverland offers a substantial network of support and direct health services throughout the region. Access to general practice doctors, dentists, pharmacies plus allied health service providers are available in each of the five major towns.

The Riverland boasts hospitals in each of the five major towns, offering a range of services to meet the diverse needs of the region.

The Riverland General Hospital, in Berri, provides an after-hours GP clinic, radiology services and, following its recent redevelopment, now offers a rehabilitation centre, mental health unit, additional operating theatres, renal dialysis chairs and chemotherapy facilities.

A personalised approach to childbirth is available through facilities at the Riverland General, Loxton, and Waikerie hospital complexes.

The Riverland health system provides 24-hour emergency care, caters for both private and public patients, and is regularly serviced by visiting medical specialists and other health professionals. Regional Economy

The Riverland is South Australia's fruit bowl.

Through our strong reliance on favourable environmental conditions and water from the River Murray, our people and economy are resilient and innovative.

Irrigated Horticulture, dryland agriculture and the value add of irrigated product, have traditionally dominated the Riverland's economy. Wine grapes, table grapes, oranges, almonds, stone fruit, and a number of other niche market fruits and vegetables are commonly grown in our fertile Riverland soil.

The need to diversify was highlighted during the Millennium Drought and a resulting focus on diversification and innovation now also sees tourism, health, education and manufacturing contribute significantly to the Riverland economy.

Ideally located on the main eastern state transit link, the region is home to a number of large businesses that operate both throughout the nation and internationally.

Affordable land and currently underutilised assets have recently attracted a number of new businesses with international markets into our region. The Riverland provides the perfect, ideally located, cost effective base for businesses looking to distribute throughout the nation.

A locally based multi-skilled workforce meets business and industry on-going employment needs, with seasonal fruit labour requirements well supported by backpackers enjoying the Riverland lifestyle.

No it's not a rocket ship!
